Following the crash of flight 4U9525 France, international reactions multiply. German Chancellor Angela Merkel, the German Chancellor said he was upset and has already cancelled all appointments of the same day. From the Spanish side, the Spanish Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy said he was "appalled" tuesday about the "tragedy" of the Airbus crash connecting Barcelona in Düsseldorf that crashed with 150 people on board and announced the set up of a crisis cabinet (67 Germans and 45 Spaniards among the 150 victims of the crash). Vice President of the Spanish Government Soraya Saenz de Santamaria, responsible for leading a crisis, had previously told the Spanish media that "45 passengers were wearing Spanish surnames."

"Appalled by the plane crash in the Alps. A tragedy " Mariano Rajoy had previously written on her twitter count." We are working with the French and German authorities in the investigation "into the accident which none of the passengers survived the French authorities.-----

The Spanish head of government said he had spoken by telephone with German Chancellor Angela Merkel and the Spanish king Felipe VI who canceled a state visit Tuesday it had just begun in France. The King of Spain Felipe VI announced from Paris (where he already was) that his state visit to France was canceled.-----

Rajoy has interrupted his visit to the Basque Country to regain Madrid while the Transport Minister Ana Pastor is party to Marseille in order to approach the site of the disaster, a snowy area near Barcelonnette in the Alpes de Haute-Provence .
